

Do you employ your installers or are they self employed?

All our installers are employed full time at our company. Although most sub contractors do actually do a very good job, there is a small minority who rush installations due to the fact that they have been paid a fixed price to fit your windows regardless of how long it takes them. This encourages installers to cut corners and go home as soon as possible.

By employing installers who work full time for our company, we found that not only are installations completed to a higher standard but there is no pressure on them to get your job finished in as short a time as possible.
